About North Carolina Education Corps

North Carolina Education Corps (NCEC) is a response to the impact COVID-19 is having on schools, as students struggle to keep up with learning. We bring together community members to support students and accelerate learning, seeking to provide quality whole child and academic support to young students in the wake of the pandemic.

We do this by partnering with public schools to recruit, train, and deploy “corps members.” Corps members -- including community college and university students, recent graduates, and retirees -- are paid a living wage to work part-time as tutors. Corps members work directly for a NC school district. Corps members build relationships and connect with young students. They help teachers reach students who need additional academic support. They accelerate COVID learning recovery with students, families, and school personnel.

During the 2021-2022 school year, NC Education Corps members will serve as high-impact literacy tutors grounded in the science of reading and reading instruction. As early literacy tutors, corps members will assist K-3 students with building foundational literacy skills.

Our call to action is simple: Imagine if every K-3 student had access to a literacy tutor. Step up to serve as a corps member. Join a statewide effort to support students and accelerate learning.

Job Summary

NORTH CAROLINA Education Corps

K-3 students must learn to read well and with confidence in order to read to learn, and COVID-19 has made this harder. As a result, corps members will work as tutors who emphasize social-emotional learning and literacy tutoring grounded in the science of reading and reading instruction.

NCEC corps members are hired by a participating public school unit (school district or charter school) and will serve from September - mid May. There are two positions offered, 10-15 hours/week and 20-29 hours/week. Public school partners and open positions will be confirmed prior to the application opening on June 15. Corps members will work directly with school-based reading coaches/specialists to administer tutoring sessions with K-3 students on a 1:1 or small group basis. Tutoring sessions focus on early literacy skills, reinforcing lessons introduced by teachers.

Corps members will work consistently with the same students over the course of a school year. Corps members will build strong relationships with students, modeling and nurturing effective social and emotional skills and supporting academic growth.

NCEC will provide ongoing, cohort based professional learning throughout the year as we confront the needs of early literacy in NC. Each corps member is assigned a Learning Coach who will lead them through pre-service and in-service learning during their one-year commitment. Learning sessions will build knowledge around high-impact tutoring, the science of reading and the delivery of reading instruction. NCEC leads the corps members in tutoring development while the partner school is the employer.
